TOTAL POPULATION, INCREASE, AND DISTRIBUTION.

Total population.—The island of Porto Rico was formally surrendered by Spain to the United States in October, 1898, and by the treaty of Paris, signed December 10 of the same year, at the close of the Spanish-American War, was ceded to the United States, together with Vieques, Culebra, and other small adjacent islands.

According to the Fourteenth Census, taken as of January 1, 1920, the population of Porto Rico is 1,299,809, which represents an increase of 181,797, or 16.3 per cent, since 1910. During the same period the population of the United States, exclusive of outlying possessions, increased by 14.9 per cent. The following summary shows the population of Porto Rico as enumerated at the Federal decennial censuses of 1920 and 1910, at the special census taken under the direction of the War Department in 1899, and at nine earlier censuses taken at irregular intervals between 1765 and 1887:

remaining small adjacent islands form parts of municipalities. (See Table 1.)

Of these 76 municipalities, 8 have been organized from parts of 9 others since 1910. It has been necessary, therefore, in preparing the map on page 3, showing rates of increase and decrease in total and rural population since 1910, to make the following combinations: Bayamon, Guaynabo, and Rio Piedras; Ceiba, Fajardo, Luquillo, and Rio Grande; Guanica and Yauco; Hormigueros and Mayaguez; Humacao and Las Piedras; Jayuya and Utuado; Juana Diaz and Villalba.

Except in the case of San Juan, which is wholly urban, each of these municipalities consists of a central settlement with outlying rural districts. The division between the towns or villages and the remainder of the municipalities is merely physical, there being no political boundaries between the urban and rural portions.

Density of population.—The gross area of Porto Rico, land and water, including the adjacent and dependent islands, is 3,435 square miles. The average number of inhabitants to the square mile in 1920 was 378.4, as against 325.5 in 1910 and 277.5 in 1899. The population per square mile in 1920 was more than ten times as great as the average for the United States, exclusive of outlying possessions.

Minor civil divisions.—The political units into which Porto Rico's municipalities are divided are the barrios, which may in general be distinguished as urban and rural. The urban barrio or barrios constitute, as a rule, the city or town from which the Municipalities.—Porto Rico is divided, for the purpose of local government, into 76 districts, called municipalities. Each of the islands of Culebra and Vieques constitutes an entire municipality, and the municipality takes its name. Such cities and towns, which occupy the closely settled area, have no form of government distinct from that of the municipality to which they belong. In the municipality of San Juan all the barrios are urban in character, the city being coextensive with the municipality. In most of the smaller municipalities a single barrio, usually designated as "pueblo," constitutes the town settlement. In other municipalities the town is composed of two or more barrios. In a few cases there are located in a municipality, in addition to the principal settlement, from which it takes its name, one or more detached settlements, which in this report are termed villages in order to distinguish them from the towns. Although as a rule the urban area constitutes the entire area of the barrio or barrios in which a town is located, there are a number of instances in which a barrio contains both urban and rural territory.

In addition to the above-mentioned minor civil divisions, there are in the municipality of San Juan one military reserve and one naval reserve (radio station), and a naval radio station is located in the municipality of Cayey.

Table 2 shows the population of Porto Rico by municipalities and barrios. Under the name of each municipality that of the town from which the municipality is named is first given, together with the names of the barrios, if more than one, which it comprises. The names of the remaining barrios follow in alphabetical order, except in cases where at the census of 1899 two or more barrios were combined in making the population returns. In such cases the barrios are listed together for the purpose of comparison.

Principal places.—Porto Rico has two cities, of which San Juan, with a population of 71,443, ranks first, and Ponce, with 41,912 inhabitants, is second in size. In addition, there are 74 towns and 3 villages. (See Table 3.)

The summary in the next column shows, for each city or town having 5,000 or more inhabitants in 1920, the population at each of the last three censuses and the percentage of increase.

Urban and rural population.—For purposes of comparison it is of interest to classify the population of Porto Rico as urban or rural in accordance with the method adopted by the Bureau of the Census in classifying the population of continental United States. Urban population is defined as that residing in cities, towns, or villages having 2,500 inhabitants or more, and rural population as that residing outside such cities, towns, or villages.

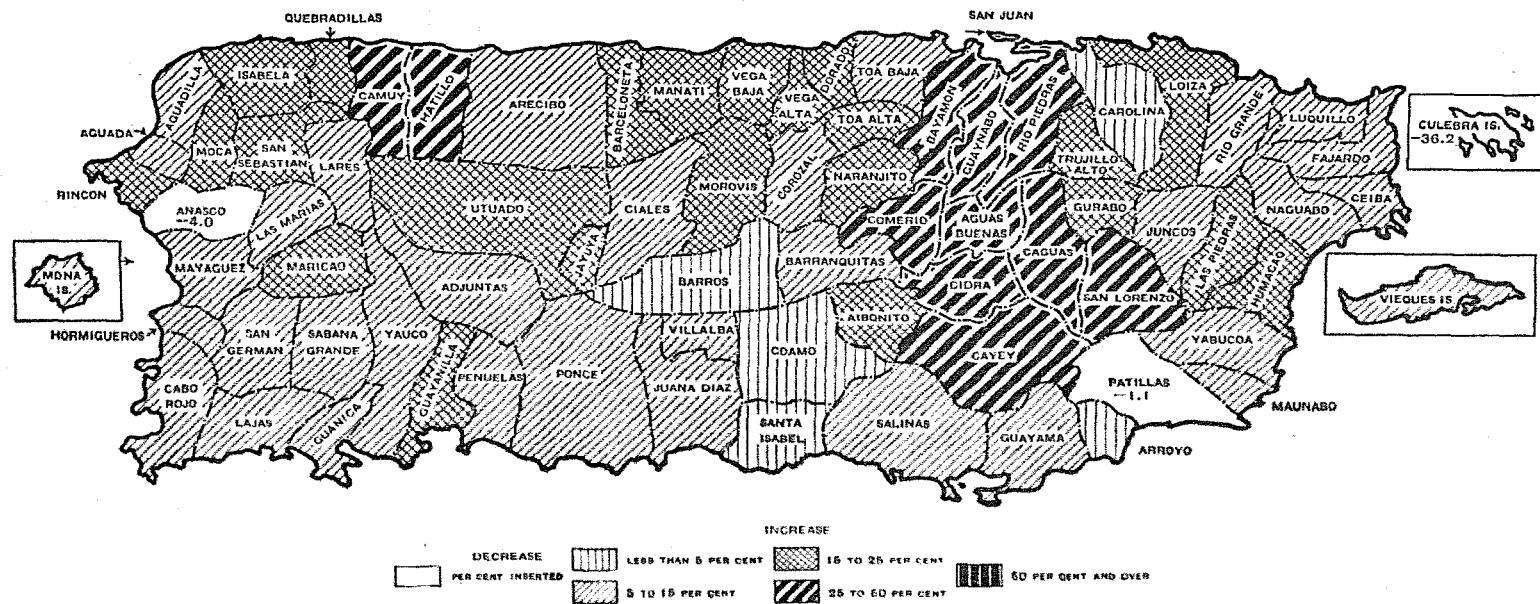

The following summary presents, for the last three censuses, figures showing the urban and rural population of Porto Rico distributed among places grouped according to specified limits of population. The classification for each census is based upon the population of the various places as shown by the returns of that census. Consequently the territory designated as urban or rural or that comprised within any one class of urban or rural places does not remain fixed, because any given place may, through the growth or the decline of its population, pass from one class to another at successive censuses. The proportion of the population of Porto Rico living in places of 2,500 or more increased from 14.6 per cent in 1899 to 20.1 per cent in 1910 and to 21.8 per cent in 1920.

(Figures for 1890 are derived from a special census taken as of Nov. 10, 1890, under the direction of the War Department. Municipalities showing no totals for 1910 or 1890 have been organized at some time between the censuses. For changes in boundaries, etc., between 1910 and 1920, see footnotes; for those between 1890 and 1910, see Reports of the Thirteenth Census, 1910, Vol. III, Table 4, p. 1184. For population of cities, towns, villages, see Table 3.)
